The Associate Quizmaster (AQM) will evaluate the sheets and record the scores. Simultaneously, the Quizmaster (QM) will reveal the answers. ROUNDS AND SAMPLE QUESTIONS FOR THE GRAND FINALE

6. Words in Context:

A contextual clue will be provided for participants to read, analyse and deduce the answer. Each clue will lead unequivocally to a single correct answer—that is, one word that best fits or substitutes the given clue. This is a Pounce Round.

Sample Extract (Contextual Clue):

...Pappachi had been an Imperial _____ at the Pusa Institute...

...His life's greatest setback was not having had the moth that he had discovered named after him.

It fell into his drink one evening while he was sitting in the verandah of a rest house after a long day in the field. As he picked it out he noticed its unusually dense dorsal tufts. He took a closer look. With growing excitement he mounted it, measured it and the next morning placed it in the sun for a few hours for the alcohol to evaporate. Then he caught the first train back to Delhi. To taxonomic attention and, he hoped, fame. After six unbearable months of anxiety, to Pappachi's intense disappointment he was told that his moth had finally been identified as a slightly unusual race of a well-known species that belonged to the tropical family Lymantriidae.

The real blow came twelve years later, when, as a consequence of a radical taxonomic reshuffle, lepidopterists decided that Pappachi's moth was in fact a separate species and genus hitherto unknown to science. By then, of course, Pappachi had retired and moved to Ayemenem. It was too late for him to assert his claim to the discovery...

In the years to come, even though he had been ill-humoured long before he discovered the moth, Pappachi's Moth was held responsible for his black moods and sudden bouts of temper. Its pernicious ghost-grey, furry and with unusually dense dorsal tufts—haunted every house that he ever lived in. It tormented him and his children and his children's children.
